Thirteen links, intertwined, each bearing the name (abbreviated) of a State (beginning at the top with New Hampshire, and reading to right, in geographical order, to Georgia), surrounding a radiated band, inscribed AMERICAN CONGRESS, inside of which, WE ARE ONE, in three lines. Border beaded. Edge, a continuous band of twin laurel leaves. Weight, 363½ grains. Silver. Sharp, splendid impression. In extremely fine condition, with old tone, and bearing every appearance of having been struck in 1776 for circulation; not at all like a proof or specially struck piece. Guaranteed genuine. See plate. Unique in silver from these dies. The only other specimen of this coinage known in silver is in the collection of Mr. L. G. Parmelee, who purchased it with the Seavey Collection, 1873, previously in the Clay Collection, 1871, and is much worn, having evidently done service in circulation as a coin, which is from the die with one R in CURRENCY, without the engraver's initials, and on rev. link inscribed MASSACHS preceedes the one inscribed N. HAMPS.

One of the greatest, most interesting, and valuable American coins ever offered. This magnificent piece was sold in an English sale last December for £20 10*s.* = $100; but, before we bought it, it had changed hands twice, each time at a considerable advance, and we had to pay a large price to procure it.

The very devices on this coin were used on the $\frac{1}{8}$, $\frac{1}{3}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{2}{3}$ of a dollar bills issued under authority of Congress at Philadelphia, February 17, 1776, which bear on their faces, within a small square, the design of the sun-dial with the sun shining upon it, above an arc the sun and the word FUGIO, and beneath MIND YOUR BUSINESS; whilst on the backs or reverses they have the chain of thirteen links, beginning with N. Hamps., and the same centre of a radiated band, bearing AMERICAN CONGRESS, enclosing WE ARE ONE. The notes of the higher denominations, printed from the plates of the previous emission, have "Continental Currency" on the face. For comparison, we have placed on the plate a $\frac{2}{3}$ of a dollar note and a cent of 1787, to go with the dollar. In addition to the notes indicating the side to be considered the obverse, the fabric of these coins plainly shows that the sun-dial was the under-die or obverse, and the chain the reverse. Mr. Crosby probably followed the Resolution for the cents mentioned below, which describes the chain side first; but these coppers also show the same indications of fabric as the dollar of 1776. These designs were ordered by Congress, July 6, 1787, to be placed on the cents (No. 240), to be issued in that year. From a foot-note, page 302, in Crosby's "Early Coins of America," it would appear that the originator of this quaint design was thought to be either Judge Hopkinson or David Rittenhouse; but may there not also be a likelihood that it was the work of Benjamin Franklin, the motto "Mind your business" being quite characteristic, and in unity with his maxims? Franklin designed, and Dupré engraved, the beautiful "Libertas Americana" medal, commemorating the Independence of the United States and victories over Burgoyne at Saratoga and Cornwallis at Yorktown.

239 1776 Dollar. Same device, but with CURENCY, and without initials of the engraver. R. MASSACHS precedes N. HAMPS. Tin. Fine. Rare.

240 1787 Cent. Sun-dial, sun above, FUGIO, 1787; beneath, in two lines, MIND YOUR BUSINESS. R. Thirteen links, joined, encircling a band inscribed STATES UNITED, enclosing WE ARE ONE, in three lines. Uncirculated. Red. See plate.
